

“We need you!”

beyond digital violence

Using the posts in prevention trainings

The pictures of the campaign "We need you!" for Safer Internet Day 2022 of the project "Beyond Digital Violence" (ByeDV) can be used for prevention.

1. Target group

The pictures are especially suitable for adults who work with children and young people, volunteers or parents and carers. However, they can also be discussed with young people.

2. Objectives

The images and quotations are suitable for engaging people in conversation, encouraging them to reflect and rethink their attitudes.

3. Leading questions

The quotes encourage taking the perspective of the young people. Guiding questions for joint discussions or group work can be:

- What do digital and social media mean to young people growing up today? What developmental tasks are related to them? What needs do they fulfil?
- What are the risks of using them? What risks do young people expose themselves to with their online behaviour?
- What support do they need from adults? What do they want from adults?
- What is the role of the participants? What should or must they deal with? What should they know about? What can they do to support young people and be there for them?

Finally it helps to motivate the participants to clarify for themselves their next steps:

- What do they want to learn?
- Who helps them to do that? Where can they get information?
- How do young people in their environment find out that they can also be approached about concerns about digital media?
