Statements

BeBrave!

Wibke Müller, Betroffenenrat der UBSKM; Mié Kohiyama, BeBraveFrance

Childhood sexual violence affects at least one in five girls and one in ten boys across socio-economic backgrounds. Between 2010 and 2020, there has been a 9,000% increase in abuse images online, according to the U.S. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Europe is a global hub for childhood sexual violence material. We urgently need more international cooperation because the internet is borderless and online crimes are borderless crimes. The EU needs to take bold and transformative action now. This will set a new global standard. The Brave Movement, a survivor-centered global movement fighting to end childhood sexual violence, is calling on all stakeholders in the European Union to #BeBrave with us to keep children safe.

Current Steps to Protect Children and Young People in the Digital Space at EU Level

Cathrin Bauer-Bulst, EU Commission

The presentation will give an overview of the 2020-2025 strategy and the Commission's legislative proposals in the area of criminalisation of sexual violence against children, the role of online services, and the possible creation of an EU centre for preventing and combating sexual violence against children.

Keynote – Beyond Digital Violence

Project presentation and results

Beyond Digital Violence

Katharina Kärger, Frederic Vobbe, SRH Hochschule Heidelberg

The keynote provides insights into selected quality criteria for implementing the recommendations for dealing with mediated sexualised violence against children and adolescents as well as the participatory process through which they were developed.

For the Purpose of the Project:

ByeDV aims at implementing already empirically developed recommendations on how to professionally deal with sexualized violence using digital media (SVUDM) against children and adolescents in German counselling practice. By means of an accompanying formative evaluation, quality criteria are to be developed, which are to be understood as a blueprint for European experts in counselling on SVUDM. Data will be collected for the purpose of qualitative analysis and evidence-based conclusions drawing and development of quality criteria.

Keynotes

Together for Strong Children's Rights Alliances

Jana Schrempf, ECPAT Germany

ECPAT Germany works towards strengthening child based alliances in Germany and the EU on the topic of online safety for children and youth. Nowadays, the online world is just as much part of the world of children and youth as the offline world. This also brings the risk of them being sexually abused and exploited in the digital sphere. In order to create a safer digital environment for minors in the EU we need to develop new strategies to bring together the fundamental rights of privacy and safety. For this, it is essential to reinforce child based alliances in Europe so that we become a stronger stakeholder in the multi-professional discussions with politics, tech industry, and data protection alliances.

Further Development of Child and Youth Media Protection

Denise Michels, Bundeszentrale für Kinder- und Jugendmedienschutz (BzKJ)

The task of the Bundeszentrale für Kinder- und Jugendmedienschutz (Federal Centre for Child and Youth Media Protection) is to recognise, analyse and counter potential media threats to children and young people. To further develop the protection of children and young people from harmful media, the BzKJ organises, among other things, the discourse format ZUKUNFTSWERKSTATT, in 2023 also on the topic of "Sexual violence and harassment in the digital space". The aim is to develop the necessary needs for action as well as specifics for digital protection concepts against sexual violence and harassment online. For this purpose, dangerous situations are to be illustrated in order to be able to better assess where precautionary measures are needed and how these are to be designed as an effective encounter with danger.

Keynotes – Project Presentations

CONSENT: Combating ONLINE early access to Sexually explicit material and ENhancing Tools to foster youngsters' healthy intimate relationships

Berta Vall, Fundacion Blanquerna

Pornography is an industry that normalize violent and abusive attitudes towards women, such as aggression, degradation, and sexual objectification. The UNICEF (2020) stated that during the COVID-19 crisis children and adolescents have increased their online activity due to the lockdown and school closures, which resulted in pornography consumption skyrocketing.

The CONSENT project aims at:

- Promoting equality and consensual behaviours among youngsters to safeguard their emotional development and wellbeing,
- Preventing all forms of GBV with a special focus on sexual violence and consent among youngsters, specifically online sexual violence,
- Hindering the internet's impact on premature sexualization, hyper sexualization and sexism among children and youngsters.

Cooperating for an Institutional Strategy to Tackle the Digital Dimension of Violence Against Women: the DeStalk Action and Campaign

Elena Gajotto, WWP European Network, Una Casa per l'Uomo

Digital technology is a fundamental part of our lives. It is important to know how we can increase our online security so that we continue browsing feeling free and safe. Instead:

- 95% of online abuse occurs against women.
- 70% of women who experience cyberviolence also experience physical or sexual violence.

The DeStalk project was developed by a multidisciplinary consortium and with the support of the European Commission. DeStalk consortium made possible that:

- Upgraded toolkits for specialised services addressing gender-based violence in their everyday work were developed.
- Over 500 professionals of specialised services and public institutions in Europe have been trained and are prepared to respond to the digital dimension of violence against women.
- Communications materials to campaign against cyberabuse and stalkerware are available for European stakeholders' adaptation and use.

#UNDDU?

Julia von Weiler, Innocence in Danger e.V.

When sexting turns into share rape: The keynote deals with the special dynamics of sexualised violence by young people against young people in the digital space.

As part of the federal model project #UNDDU?, funded by the Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth, Julia von Weiler from the NGO Innocence in Danger e.V. developed workshops for young people and professionals as well as digital tools to educate and effectively counter digital sexualized violence by young people against young people.

For the afternoon, you can choose between a German-language workshop or continuing keynotes: Project presentations in English.

Please indicate your choice when registering for the event.

Workshop 1

Quality Criteria for Safe Places in Case of Circulating Image and Video Recordings

Katharina Kärger, Frederic Vobbe, SRH Hochschule Heidelberg

beyond
digital
violence

The dissemination via digital media of abuse images, sexualised photos or videos, or other evidence of violence often results in recurring stresses for the affected children or adolescents due to secondary and/or re-victimization (e.g. humiliation, insults, exclusion). Using a case vignette as an example, this workshop will address the attitude and actions needed to best protect those affected. The focus will be on cooperation within the help network and crisis intervention/trauma (pedagogical) work: What do victims need, when and from whom, when they are haunted by a previous violent experience? What is your role as the helper, and what are the roles of professionals?

Workshop 2

Quality Criteria for Trauma-Sensitive/Stress-Sensitive Attitudes and Encounters in Counseling on Mediatized Sexualized Violence

Ralph Bruder, Sonja Kroggel, Kinderschutzzentrum Ulm/Neu-Ulm

beyond
digital
violence

Children and adolescents who have experienced sexualized violence by digital media are often unsettled, emotionally burdened or even traumatized. In most cases, they are under great psychological and emotional pressure as a result of the sexualized violence they have experienced. This pressure is intensified by the reactions of their social environment to the dissemination of depictions of abuse online. As a consequence, they often confide in friends, their parents or other adults only at a late stage and endure the possible threat for a long time - which in turn leads to further stress. Based on these findings, the attitude and first encounter are particularly important to us in counseling children and young people. What this means exactly and how it can be built up, we would like to work out together with you on the basis of a case vignette under the following aspects. In doing so, the quality criteria in this regard will be presented:

- Encounter in the first contact (children, adolescents and parents)
- Building trust and relationships (under emotional stress; traumatization)
- Joint development of a trauma-sensitive relationship structure

Workshop 3

Cybergrooming: Covered Dynamics of Violence Quality Criteria for Dealing with Covered Violence Dynamics and Cybergrooming

Julia Hopf, Kinder- und Jugendschutzdienst Känguru Weimar, Maj Walter, Wildwasser Marburg

beyond
digital
violence

Cybergrooming presents itself as a form of violence that is often difficult to recognize and classify for those affected as well as for the social environment and professionals. On which level does mediatized sexualized violence begin and which indications of violence can be classified professionally? The initiation and establishment of contact with children (minors) via digital media with the aim of abusing them for one's own sexually motivated intentions can have the most diverse facets. In our workshop, we will look at possible perpetrator strategies and the effects and consequences they have on and for those affected, based on a case vignette. Based on quality criteria, we will discuss questions about possible intervention steps and prevention messages to protect young people.

Workshop 4

Quality Criteria for Working with Perpetrators of Mediatized Sexualized Violence

Marco Roock, Jens Ihnen, Männerbüro Hannover/Beratungsstelle Anstoß

beyond
digital
violence

In this digital workshop we will approach mediatized sexualized violence from the perspective of working with perpetrators. In doing so, we will focus on both adolescents with sexually transgressive behavior and adult sexual offenders. In this context, we would like to examine the following aspects together with you, based on the quality criteria we have developed:

- Offender characteristics
- Anonymity and digital space
- Grooming by means of digital media
- Sexting that violates boundaries
- Consumption, possession and distribution of abusive images of children and adolescents

Workshop 5

Quality Criteria for the Prevention of Mediatized Sexualized Violence

Claudia Wienand, Anna Polzin, Frauen gegen Gewalt Westerburg/ Präventionsbüro Ronja

beyond
digital
violence

Digital violence has not yet arrived as a topic in prevention work across the board. For the young generation, digital media are an inseparable part of their life - they do not distinguish between analog and digital. However, the anonymity and accessibility of the Internet can be instrumentalized for the commission of border violations, assaults and criminal acts - even by peers. Even carried out analogously, they usually continue in the digital space or are accompanied by it. These aspects should be taken into account in everyday pedagogical life.

In this workshop, we present quality criteria for the prevention of sexualized violence with digital media use and give tips for practical implementation. We will explore the question of what content should be covered in prevention programs? With what attitude should workshops be conducted? How competent do the participants experience us as contact persons? Prevention units should educate without using prohibitions or stoking fears. We would like to work out together how this can succeed.

Workshop 6

Right to Protection and Duty of Care- International Obligations and Interdisciplinary Opportunities

Jana Schrempp, ECPAT Germany

This workshop will go into more detail on how strengthening child based alliances in Europe contribute to the prevention and combat of the sexual exploitation of minors online. Through the support of ECPAT International, a child based advocacy alliance focusing on the EU Commission Proposal to prevent and combat child abuse online was formed. Together with other child rights organizations from across Europe, ECPAT Germany is part of this advocacy group. Until the implementation of the proposed Regulation there is still a long way to go, including many discussions and the finding of constructive solutions, as well as compromises. And even after the Regulation's ratification, the work won't be done as it still has to be interpreted and integrated into national legislation and law. Due to this, it is essential to have strong alliances on the European level, as well as the national level.

Workshop 7

Protection from Digital Sexualized Violence in Schools

Heike Holz, Petze e.V., Christin M. Pontius, DGfPI e.V.

*beyond
violence*

Digital sexualized violence does not only affect children and young people. They are also practicing share violence. Teachers and the school system are challenged by the abuse material circulating among students. Therefore, this workshop will focus on the two aspects: What roles do teachers, school administrators and other school staff have when digital sexualized violence becomes known among the students at their school? What can schools do to prevent digital sexualized violence?

Workshop 8

Thinking about Digital Sexualized Violence when Developing a Protection Concept

Yvonne Oeffling, AMYNA e.V., Ulrike Mund, DGfPI e.V.

violence*

Sexualized violence via digital media has become so widespread that these forms of violence are no longer exceptions for children and young people, but occur frequently. In this respect, all professionals who work with children and young people must deal with this issue. It is particularly important for youth welfare institutions to consider the digital dimension when developing their protection concepts. What is important here? We want to explore and discuss this question in the workshop.
