

Complaints Management

Complaint mechanisms are an important building block in the prevention of sexualised violence. In order to be able to take action for the protection of children and young people, responsible adults must first learn about crossing of boundaries and sexualised violence. The surest source for this is the victims themselves. Making it easier for them to tell must be a central element of prevention.

Complaints Management Digitally Thought

- Which risk areas arise in the digital space?
- Where is there a need for clarification?
- What examples are there?

What consequences are drawn from this?
